As technology continues to advance, there has been a trend toward reducing the size of semiconductor devices. For example, the dimensions of a resistive memory device, such as a cross-point memory device, have shrunk as the size of semiconductor devices decreases. However, as the size of a resistive memory device decreases, the size of components that make up the resistive memory device decrease as well. As the dimensions of a resistive memory device decrease, the size of the electrodes that connect components of the resistive memory device also decreases, which may reduce the reliability of the resistive memory device. The use of alternative electrodes that do not reduce the reliability of the resistive memory device may help overcome some of the disadvantages of conventional electrodes. Q: Visualizing data-unions I have an Entity Framework query with two where clauses: select * from information where ((location = 'North' and firstName in ('J', 'W', 'G')) or (location = 'South' and firstName in ('J', 'W', 'G'))) and (year = 2012) I'm having trouble visualizing this as two different data-unions. The two sets of unioned firstNames are different but they're all distinct. I'd like to see the set of firstNames for each location (North and South) when 2012 is used as the year. I'd like to see the set of all firstNames for the two sets of unioned data 82157476af
